PIANOS

MAJOR AND MINOR.

A. Whithartiz, of Los Angeles, Cal., formerly of this city, has been visiting friends here.

A. P. Erker & Bro., the practical opticians, 61 Olive Street, have the finest made in the city. They keep in stock the most reliable line of spectacles and eye glasses, as well as opera and field glasses, telescopes, microscopes, drawing instruments, artificial eyes, etc. A specialty is made of ocular prescriptions. We take pleasure in recommending them to our city and outside patrons.

Do not forget that if you want an elegant parol or a fine, famous, silk umbrella, you can get it at Samenorff Bros., the umbrella makers, 314 S. 3d Street; and what is of much importance to you—the prices are the lowest in the city—none can undersell them. Samenorff Bros. are the most genial and popular dealers in the West.

Verdi recently related to a correspondent of the Daily Graphic the following interesting incident of his early career. "It was after I had dreamed on in poverty and disappointment, friendless and unknown, howling my music about from publisher to publisher, I succeeded in getting my opera, 'Nabucco' accepted. During the rehearsal at La Scala, Milan, when packed with doubt and despondency, vocalists slung vices, orchestras playing capriciously, and workmen making all the noise possible with hammer and saw, the following incident occurred: The chorus began singing, in their customary extra-weak quaver, 'Ei prostero' but before half a dozen bars had been got through, the theatre became as still as a church. The hammers and saws suddenly became silent, and the wailers of them sat about on the ladders and scaffolding intently listening. At the conclusion of the number the proprietaries gave vent to the noblest applause in their vernacular, accompanying their shouts with frantic blows on the woodwork. This was sufficient omen to me of a future success."

Miss Letitia Freich, the popular prima donna and solo soprano singer, since opening her vocal studio at 2133 Washington Ave. (Room 7) has met with the most signal success. Miss Freich trains the voice for choir singing, parlor, concert and operatic stages, and gives special lessons to trained vocalists in the rendition of songs for special occasions. She has a pure, fresh voice, trained by the best masters of Europe.

Miss Alice Bell Thistle, since her landing here, has taught piano with the greatest success. Miss Thistle was a pupil of the Chicago Conservatory and of Mr. Robert Goldbeck. She receives pupils at her residence, 2650 Washington Avenue.

Wm. D. Armstrong, of Alton, spent the summer studying organ under Dr. Charles Eddy. Mr. Eddy praised his playing in terms of the highest commendation. Mr. Armstrong was a pupil of Shortell College and the Western Military Academy during the past seasons has been productive of the highest results. He intends to make the present season a high water mark.

In "Men of the Day," Lippincott's gives the following description of Sir Arthur Sullivan:
"Sir Arthur Sullivan is a short-necked, thick-set, beetle-browed man, with curly black hair, mustaches and side whiskers, and is somewhat stilted as to manner. He is one-and-fifty years of age, and has been married during five-and-thirty of them. In his song writing, which is extensive, his popularity has been greater perhaps than that of any other English composer. In addition to his ballads, he has composed some of the best known of modern music. His orchestra, too, was been uniformly successful, but he is perhaps best known to fame as the joint author with Gilbert of that long line of comic operas out of which they made out of their hundred and fifty thousand dollars apiece. His enemies say that he is really cruel to anybody who has not a handle to his name, yet with all he is not utterly destitute of humor, and he can tell a good story on occasion. He has hitherto failed to marry, but he has been decorated with degrees and orders innumerable. He was improved into a knight some ten years since, and, having amassed a comfortable competence, passes a pleasant life and is tolerably popular."

ALEXANDRE GUILMANT.

Although well known himself as a composer, M. Gullmunt is so thoroughly an artist that he never permits his personal success to intrude upon the public, but subordinates the composer always to the interpreter, rendering the great works of the masters, whom he has so faithfully studied, with a power, refinement and versatility which have made him so deservedly renowned.

THE DVORAK THEORY OF NEGRO MELODIES.

The list of composers who have paraphrased for songs in their compositions is a long one. Liszák's predilections for the song were well known. He was the first to employ German ballads in his works. Dr. Stanford in his Irish symphony introduced ancient Irish tunes, and Dr. Tóreser, who is not as well known as he ought to be, has exclusively employed songs in his compositions. Grieg, Svanenau and all the Slavonic composers, have drawn upon the musical idioms of their respective countries in their desire to give local color to their compositions.

But there are many people who consider that nationalism in music is a vague term. There are different ways of looking at

What is needed in comic opera are new librettists—writers who will realize that its raison d'être lies in its plot and the tell-it-as-it-is quality of its lyrics. The librettist must be able to tell a story in plain, glowing, and that to be acceptable from a logical as well as an artistic point of view. It also needs a thread of interest, a strain of reason, and, intermittently, a touch of pathos. Of all stage genres, comic opera is the one that has the least to recommend it, and the less the inherent merit, the greater the necessary outlay. Society and appointments have to be lavish, costumes as rich as the plots, and the librettist must be able to make his characters the troops of dancers and armies of singers, and before the curtain has risen on the initial performance a small fortune must have been expended. The librettist must be able to write whose text the many composers who have the faculty of writing good music will find inspiration, the playing of dummy soldiers and the dancing of the tiger's tails will be related to the sawdust ring.

Delegates from all the German singing societies were present and sang individually and in chorus. Addresses were made by Dr. Charles Keidel on behalf of the firm, by Mayor Latrobe and Gen. M. Keidel read a cable message from Mr. Ernest Latrobe, who is in England, in which the head of the firm wished the employees pleasure during the festival and success in the future.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF SINGING.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF SINGING.

It is both lamentable and aggravating to think how many of our ministers, lecturers, and evangelists, in this matter, are guilty of a very serious and, through defect of manner, the main factor of which is, very frequently, a want of carrying over the voice, and an indistinct articulation and utterance. This is a very great and serious fault, and one which occurs occasionally, but the benefit of the "winged word" is chiefly conspicuous by its absence. To tell the truth, this is one of our great reasons why conferences, assemblies and so on are often times so tedious and unprofitable. We have many well-regulated means for avoiding rather than encouraging it.
